“ Eddy boy... Oh boy.. Where do I begin? I've had so many great memories with you. I love you like you don't even know. You were a big part of my life. I am so blessed to have known and met someone like you. You can make just setting around fun. I'm glad that we got to spend time together. Now it wasn't as much time as I would've wanted altogether, but it was enough to get to know your true colors. I miss you so much! Can't wait to see you and take a ride on your Harley! So many things catch my attention throughout the day about you. You were a great man! I'm waiting for the day that I will finally be able to see you again! Please keep a hand of protection over me and help guide me in the right direction. I love you Ed! I'm not sure if you actually knew that because I didn't really take the time and realize that you could be in Heaven anytime soon... But you know exactly how much I love you now! You will forever be missed and loved!

“Eddie cash stole my heart in May 2014. One date w/him & I was head over heels. I remember always tryin to look my best for him, but it didnt take me long to figure out he hated to wait. One time I wasnt ready when he got there to pick me up, so he just turned around, walked out & left. Said he HAD to do that to get me "trained" right. At times he made me furious & times he melted my heart. I always had a hard time stayin mad at him- he KNEW I couldnt resist his pretty eyes & beautiful smile, not to mention he could charm a snake. He loved being outside, think the only time he wanted to be inside was when he was sleeping. Couple of wks ago we were cookin dinner at my house, I look over & Ed has made this huge mess, I stop what im doin & start cleanin up his mess, scolding him a little, next thing I know hes out the door- not mad, doesnt say a word, just slips outside. When dinner is ready I go out to round him up & here he comes pullin up the driveway in my car w/that beautiful smile & says; "Honey, I thought you were gonna make me clean that mess up, so I snuck down the road for a beer"- (which is why he didnt ride his bike obviously). "And see I made it back just in time for dinner so pls dont be mad at me". He brought me a lot of laughter & joy. Just last week we ran into walmart for a couple of things but both ended up w/our hands & arms full, on our way to the register I noticed he started walkin a little funny, then tells me what he REALLY shouldve gotten was a smaller pair of pants or a belt, abt that time his pants fall to his knees, and while hes scurrying around to find a place to set all of stuff down so he can pull his pants up, I couldnt help but laugh & tell him to slow down there a little Fast Eddie & take the time to put your belt on in the mornings, as he bends over to put his stuff down, I tell him- "more importantly, YOUR UNDERWEAR!" I miss you so much Ed, you left a big hole in my heart & many others, as well. There will never be another like you! I hope you know how deeply I cared for you & that I will always love you. “Eddie was a really good friend of my husbands (Matt), so naturally he became a friend of mine. He would come visit us a lot. Matt and him would tease each other about everything just about. The thing I remember most is how much he loved those two little dogs that had to go everywhere with him. He really had a big heart. He will be missed by many, and I know by Matt a lot. My prayers go out to the family, God bless you all!

“ I was Mark's libRaritan at Mansfield Elementary when he was a young boy. I remember Mark well because he liked to "stir things up" a little during library time. Nothing I couldn't manage. I do remember the year I returned to school with a new last name and Mark persisted in calling my by the former last name which was painful to me due to the circumstances. One day I could take it no longer and took him out in the hall for a discussion. I explained to him how my former last name was a reminder of a bad part of my life and how I tried to call him by his name as he wished to show him respect and that I expected the same respect from him. From that point on he always called me Mrs. Jeffery. We settled the issue with kind words and I always treasured that he chis to doc the right thing at that moment.

Mark was also a good friend of my brother, Kevin Boyd. I know Kevin will miss him greatly.

Please accept my condolences.

“ I learned how to climb trees... because you taught me! (Never really figured out how to get down from them very well... LOL) - but I could climb them! I remember how we used to play together as kids and dig for worms in the yard. I wish we could have all re-connected as adults. You'll forever be missed. Love you Cousin!

“ I will never forget the fun times w you and dad. The poker runs, the lake trips (especially the time we were tubing and you always had to go in fast circle to throw every one off the tube lol) the fourwheeling all over the place. Swimming in every creek we could find. I will cherish every single memory. Wish we couldve had more. But its your time w Jesus. We love you fast Eddie❤️
